

A Reflection from Fr. Joseph

Johnny opened the birthday gift from his grandmother, he discovered a water pistol. He squealed with delight and headed for the nearest sink. Johnny’s mother was not so pleased. She turned to her mom and said: “I’m surprised at you mom; don’t you remember how we used to drive you crazy with water guns?” Her mom smiled and then replied, “I remember.”

When someone hates you, you have two choices: you can hate them back or you can refuse to hate. When someone hurts you, you can respond in two ways: you can hurt them back or you can refuse to hurt. In today’s Gospel Jesus makes it clear that if we wish to be his disciples, we must refuse to hate, refuse to hurt. This is why he teaches that we are to love our enemies, and why he enshrines that teaching in the golden rule: “Do unto others as you would have them do to you.” Since we would not want others to hate us or hurt us, we should not adopt hateful or hurtful attitudes towards them.

Now this teaching to love our enemies, to follow the golden rule is the most difficult of all Jesus’ teachings. We all struggle against it. We have many objections. It does not make sense. It is impossible to follow. The people who hurt and hate us do not deserve our love and forgiveness. We cannot help but ask, “Why does Jesus want us to do something that is so difficult? Why is He so insistent that we love our enemies?”

It is clear that many people do not follow His teaching. They may feel that the golden rule is foolish or impractical. Therefore, they decide to return hate with hate, to return hurt with hurt. Their golden rule is: “Do to others as they have done to you.”

If this is the direction people have taken, then there are questions to be asked: “How is this approach working for you? Are you satisfied with its results? The results of this approach are easy to find. Look at the newspapers. Watch the media. Look at the situation in the Middle East: “You hurt us, we’ll hurt you.” Look at the retribution that characterizes the gang violence in our cities and around the world. Violence grows into an escalating cycle of destruction and hatred.

If this method of retaliation is not working, if it is a failure, then the method Jesus taught us which is not to hate, not to hurt, but to respond with forgiveness and love is a good method. Now Jesus’ approach is still difficult, but it is the only way to break the cycle of violence and hatred that is destroying our world and ruining our lives. Jesus’ teaching is not easy, but it is the only teaching that works. Maybe it is time to love our enemy, to forgive the one who hurts us, to do to others as we would have them do to us.

Stewardship Reflection

"But rather, love your enemies and do good to them, and lend without expecting anything back." (Luke 6:35)

Easier said than done, right? But, if we are to imitate Christ, most of us need to practice mercy and compassion more frequently. Start with the little daily annoyances that we experience, the unkind word or hateful glance we receive. Instead of plotting revenge on that person, try saying a quick prayer for that person. Mercy and compassion will put us on the path to holiness.
