

A Reflection from Fr. Joseph

An American was traveling in the Middle East. As he was driving through the countryside, he ran across two shepherds whose sheep had become intermingled, as they drank from a brook. He watched as the two shepherds talked with one another, concluded their conversation, then bid one another farewell and began to walk off in two different directions. As they did so, the one shepherd called out, “Mannah, mannah,” which in Arabic means, “follow me.” At the same time, the other shepherd called out the same words. The sheep lifted their heads and then divided precisely into two groups, each recognizing the voice of their shepherd.

Jesus uses this shepherding image, in today’s Gospel, to describe His relationship with us. If He is the shepherd, then we must be the ones who recognize His voice and follow Him. But what does it mean to recognize the voice of Jesus? Christians believe that at times, in our life, Christ asks us to do something quite specific. What Christ asks us to do can be both dramatic and life changing.

The Salwen family, a suburban family from Atlanta, had a story to tell. A number of years ago Kevin, the father, was driving with his fourteen-year-old daughter, Hannah, through the downtown section of the city. They stopped at a traffic light. Hannah, looking out of the window, saw a man on the sidewalk holding a sign: “Homeless, please help!” At the same time, she saw a man in a luxurious Mercedes waiting with them at the traffic light. She said to her father, “You know dad, if that man in the Mercedes had a little less nice a car, the man on the sidewalk could have a meal.” Kevin thought for a moment about his daughter’s comment and then said, “You know Hannah, if we had a little less nice a car, that man could have a meal.”

That interchange between father and daughter set the Salwen family on a spiritual journey, a journey that they have recounted in their book, “The Power of Half.” It is called “The Power of Half” because after a considerable number of months of family discussion, the Salwens decided that they did not need as big a house. They agreed to sell their house and give half of the proceeds away. Now they had a big house, six thousand square feet, and the market was better for housing in those days. They down sized and were able to give $800,000 to a hunger effort in the African country of Ghana.

Why half? Half is measurable. So many times, we run into a situation of real need and we say to ourselves, “I should do something.” But “something” is vague, and vagueness means that often we end up doing nothing at all. But half is a precise metric that can push us into action. The other advantage of half is that it is not connected to size. It does not have to be half of your house like it was for the Salwens. It could be half of a pay check or half of an evening out or half of an unexpected gift. What was important for the Salwens was their conclusion that Christ was asking them to do something. By doing it, they were indicating that they belonged to the good shepherd.

I am not recommending that you give half of something away. I only want to offer a concrete example of someone who heard the voice of Christ speaking in the circumstances of their own life and chose to follow it. So, the important question for each of us here today is: what is Christ calling me to do? What is Christ asking me to do? It is a question that is essential to our relationship, because we cannot follow Him if we do not recognize His voice.

PROJECT ADVANCE 2019

“Live gratefully, give generously”

Last weekend we launched our Project Advance campaign. Our parish share of the overall diocesan goal is $41,000, plus expenses.

However, our own parish goal is to raise $100,000.00 because everything we raise over the archdiocesan goal comes back to us.

Can we do it??? Yes, we can! If we respond to the Lord with the same generosity we have received from Him.

Project Advance helps us meet the material and spiritual need of our Church and parishes. For us, at St. Jude’s, it is our means to raise funds for capital projects such as the roof in the church, which is in need of repair. It also helps support the construction and renovations of our schools, provide grants for special ministries in the Archdiocese and acquire land for new parishes. Every gift is important and appreciated, regardless of the amount and gratefully appreciated. Volunteers will be available in the church vestibule to assist you. If you prefer, you can also give online at www.projectadvance.ca

Thank you for your consideration and support.

Stewardship Reflection

“The disciples were filled with joy and the Holy Spirit.” (Acts 13:52)

The disciples heard Our Lord’s call and were able to spread the Gospel message with strength and vitality. We, too, can experience that same joy if we make room for the Holy Spirit to fill our hearts. When we use our gifts in the way that God intends, He fills us with supernatural joy. A joy that others notice and are attracted to.
